EN INGLÉS QUE EN ESPAÑOL.

Con el objeto de hacerla lo más corta posible, no han sido comprendidos en ella los que tienen una misma ortografía en ambas lenguas, y los que pueden ser traducidos fácilmente con sólo mudar su terminación extranjera en la castellana; para lo cual se deberán observar las reglas siguientes.

Los acabados en burg, burgh, bourg y borough que no se hallen en la lista, se traducirán mudando solamente estas terminaciones en la castellana burgo, como Augsburg, Augsburgo; Petersburgh, Petersburgo; Hamburgh, Hamburgo; Cobourg, Coburgo; y Peterborough, Peterburgo, etc.

Hay muchos nombres geográficos universalmente conocidos que terminan en e, y se traducen con sólo mudar la e en a, como Europe, Europa; Rome, Roma, etc.

Los ingleses suelen designar algunos de los condados en que dividen la Gran Bretaña, por medio de la terminación shire añadida al nombre del condado, distrito ó provincia, como Derbyshire, que se traducirá El condado, distrito ó provincia de Derby; Yorkshire, El condado de York, etc.

Nota.—Los adjetivos derivados de los nombres propios se hallarán en sus respectivos lugares en el texto de este diccionario.
